Irvine-Based Physician To Appear on PBS

Dr. Felix Horng will be discussing Anemia on PBS station KOCE

IRVINE, February 13, 2009 - Woodbury Medical Group is proud to announce the special on-camera interview appearance of one of its physicians, Dr. Felix Horng. He will be discussing various causes and the latest treatments of anemia. The doctor's segment will appear on cable station PBS/KOCE (check the TV guide or www.koce.org for your local KOCE cable channel). The interview is scheduled to air twice: Wednesday February 18, 2009, at 7:30 pm and again on Friday February 20, 2009, at 1:30pm.

According to Dr. Horng, "Anemia is a common and often difficult condition to treat. We are thankful to American Health Journal for the opportunity to shed light on this condition."

Felix Horng, MD is President of the Woodbury Medical Group. Dr. Horng began his career with the UCLA Department of Family Medicine teaching medical students and resident physicians. He holds a bachelor's degree in bioengineering and a medical degree from the University of Illinois, and a master in business administration from the Anderson School at UCLA. Dr. Horng holds the title of assistant clinical professor at UCLA and is an expert reviewer for the Medical Board of California. Dr. Horng is also medical director of the Prototypes Women's Center and serves on the Board of Directors for the Nautilus Healthcare Management Group.
